Response to Data: Strategic Planning

- Spelling: Implementing explicit teaching model and practice for students to practice spelling words aligned to STEP level. Sharing video resources with families. Incorporating weekly spelling tests based on the scope and sequence of the spelling components assessed.
- Building Self-Reliance: Pushing students to identify what they can do to help themselves when encountering tricky words or confusing parts in the text without over relying on adult intervention and prompting. I.e., Attempting the first sound of unknown words instead of skipping it, re-reading portions of the book if they cannot immediately think of an answer to the question.
- Running Record & Student Error Analysis: Analyze student tests to identify specific barriers when misreading words to inform instruction. Previously, teachers often made surface level analysis of running records by classifying errors as sight words, words with silent e, etc.
- Character Analysis Professional Development: Teachers will participate in a training to learn how to help students analyze characters that they encounter in texts to understand their feelings and perspective based on their actions, thoughts, and words.
- Reading Progress Reports: Homeroom teachers will send home progress reports to families detailing their student's current performance. They will share concrete strategies that parents can practice and reinforce with students at home to push achievement.
- Mid-Round STEP Assessment: Assess the progress of students that are performing at or below grade level half-way through the instructional period to evaluate their progress before the next formal assessment round.
- Reading Assessment Accommodations: Select STEP approved options aligned to special education student's disability classification. This will prevent students' progress/growth from being stunted based on areas that have been identified as being needs. Options: 1) Do Not Assess, 2) Individualized Letters, 3) Do Not Count Score, 4) Untimed Reading, 5) Written Dictation.
 - o Speech and Language Impairment: Analyze student special education testing to identify the sounds that they have difficulty articulating accurately. Once sounds are identified, not penalizing students for this in their reading accuracy or spelling. I.e., If a student with a speech impairment cannot currently pronounce the "sh" sound, they will consistently misread/spell words with that sound. Going forward, these words will not be accounted for in their scoring. Will collaborate with speech provider.
 - o Fine Motor Difficulties: When deemed appropriate (STEP 5>), students will be able to dictate the spelling of words to their test proctor. The assessment is measuring the student's ability to accurately identify sounds in words, not their ability to write it legibly or at all.

VI. Transition to Remote Instruction

Due to the number of positive cases of Ivy Hill Community members, the Leadership Team made the executive decision to transition to Remote Learning for the two weeks immediately following Winter Break. The Leadership Team and teachers will spend the professional development day on Monday, January 3rd disseminating information to families and coordinating pick-up for Chromebooks and supplies. Ivy Hill will transition back to in-person instruction following the return from the Martin Luther King Jr. Holiday on Tuesday, January 18, 2022. Students will participate in academic and electives instruction virtually via Zoom.

VII. December Highlights

Highlight #1: Round STEP Assessments

Ivy Hill students completed their second round of STEP reading assessments. All homerooms will send home Reading Progress Reports to share with parents their student's performance and concrete strategies that they can implement at home to increase student practice and performance. The next STEP Round for all students is scheduled during the first two weeks of March.

Highlight #2: Winter Holiday Virtual Show

Due to COVID restrictions, the annual Winter Show was held virtually and premiered on YouTube. This year's theme was the Kwanzaa principle, Imani, meaning faith. Ivy Hill students demonstrated their proficiency of Martial Arts, Dance, and Art techniques throughout the show. Students also contributed to the overall presentation with additional performances of songs, an opening message, and a poem reading. While students wore dance costumes that aligned to their song, all students demonstrated their Martial Arts skills in their new uniforms. The all-black gis have the Ivy Hill logo on the back of the tops and represent the official presentation of students having received their white belts.

Highlight #3: Pajama Day, Gingerbread Making, Door Decorating Contests

Before departing for Winter Break, classrooms participated in Pajama Day, a Gingerbread Making Activity and participated in a class wide door decorating contest! Throughout the day, students enjoyed winter activities, games, and an overall fun day with their classmates. Nurse Marcy and Ms. Wanda also organized a Door Decorating Contest for classrooms. Contest winners Hampton University and SpelHouse B enjoyed a popcorn party in addition to the other festivities for the day! Please note that masks were removed temporarily for the pictures then returned to proper use.
