- Attendance at EdFest was down significantly

III. Charter Renewal

A. Update on charter renewal vote and next steps on agreement

- Our charter was approved for the next 15 years.
- Next steps is to begin working on "mission-specific" goal related to exclusionary discipline
- Comment on template for charter renewal agreement
- Review: governance structure, articles of incorporation, bylaws, graduation requirements, and various assurances

B. Follow-up advocacy/communications/engagement

- The challenge we face is that during the hearing critics challenged our model (not the academic outcomes, but whom we serve and how), citing incomplete and misleading data
- We also have an opportunity to engage with staff and PCSB Board to fully explain who we are, what we hope to do in the future, and why Latin is a valuable model in the DC charter landscape
- Will invite PCSB members to "visit" virtual classes and in-person visits if they are willing
- Invite them to join valediction and graduation ceremonies virtually
- Include focus groups with alumni and current parents, student, faculty and hear what they say
- Key groups to include are students with disabilities, at-risk students, and a range of not at-risk families (i.e., middle class/working class families that make up a substantial portion of Latin's current population)

IV. Finance

A. December financials

- The net income will not be as high as it is reflected now due to upcoming costs and possibly due to student testing once we bring students back
- We believe deeply in the importance of doing surveillance testing for COVID and the cost of it remains an unknown
- Financial situation is good; liquidity and DSCR are high, and we are getting as high a FAR score as we can get from PCSB
- We have more students enrolled than we initially budgeted for
- We have also fixed our Special Education numbers to ensure that OSSE has correct numbers and so that we are getting the correct funding for those students

- Y. Tse reviewed the remaining financials - overall, we are in a strong position financially

C. McFadgion left at 6:50 PM.
