III. Reports/Presentations

A. CEO Update

CEO Alison Diaz shared the following update:

Visited two of three schools on the first day of school today. Great to see students and teachers back in class, as well as the principals in action. Very fun to be back with the students on campus.

B. Principals Updates

ECMS-Inglewood: Principal Beth Bernstein-Yamashiro shared that today was the first day of school. First time having 360 students at the ECMS-I campus, along with 39 employees and looking forward to a great year! Introduced Dave Trejo, current Ryan Fellow and planned future principal of ECHS 2.

Dave Trejo introduced himself and shared his appreciation for being able to shadow Principal Beth Bernstein-Yamashiro. He shared about his involvement at the Accelerator Institute in Chicago. He complimented ECS on its professional development system for teachers and staff, which is one of the most extensive that he has seen. He looks forward to contributing to ECS after learning the ECS approach from Principals K.C. Villoria, Beth Bernstein-Yamashiro & Dr. Qiana O'Leary.

ECMS-Gardena: Principal Dr. Qiana O'Leary shared the theme for ECMS-Gardena for the 18-19 school year: ELEVATE. Dr. O'Leary spoke about her experience touring the headquarters of Uber and learning about the Uber Elevate program. For ECMS-Gardena, ELEVATE signifies Excellence Leveraged through Equity, Values, Awareness, Trust, and Empathy (with an emphasis on trust).

Focus for the school year is school climate and culture. This includes focusing on professional growth, communicating among colleagues, and providing a great educational model for students and families. All of these aspects tie into having a school climate of respect and mutual accountability. Delivering on commitments and coming through with our promises.

Dr. O'Leary shared recent highlights:

- 100% of teaching staff hired and present on the first day of school at ECMS-Gardena.
- Full enrollment for students
- 98% of IEP amendments complete
- First day of school successes: new pond is complete, partnered with Gardena High School band to welcome ECMS-Gardena students back to school.

Board Member Cathy Creasia commented that her son was very happy to be at ECMS-Gardena on the first day of school, saying that the day was fun, the teachers were nice, and he really liked the new pond. Kudos to the entire ECMS-Gardena team.

ECHS: Update tabled due to already being on the agenda in the following agenda item.

CEO Alison Diaz commented on how proud she is of all 3 school sites, for all the preparations that the school site staff made to be ready for the first day of school.

C. Gradtracker Results and College Report

ECHS Principal KC Fabiero presented the College Tracker slides:

KC Fabiero shared about the importance of college-going persistency which is explicitly included in the newly revised ECS mission statement.

The following statistics were shared:

- ECHS is averaging 84% enrollment rate of the 97% of students who are admitted to a 4-year college or university.
- ECHS alumni persistence rate of students returning for their second year of college is 94%. By comparison, the non-ECHS average rate of students returning for their second year of college is 79%.

Slides were presented showing the types of degree that students are graduating with from college, the number of years that students are taking to graduate as well as the 6-year college graduation rates with an ethnic breakdown.

ECHS counselors Lucia Banuelos, Rossa Dono-Ramirez, and Lacey Harris presented the ECHS Graduation Update slides:

The following statistics were shared:

- 84% of seniors qualify for free and reduced lunch.
- 83% of seniors will be first-generation college students. The gender and ethnic demographic breakdown of students was also shown.
- 58% of students applied to a UC. 67 seniors submitted applications to all UC campus.
- 96% of students applied to a CSU campus. 109 seniors applied to 22 of 23 CSU campuses.
- 100% of students received a Letter of Recommendation, 100% of students received 1-1 college counseling, 100% applied to an institution.
- 99% of students submitted FAFSA/Dream Act applications.
- 100% of CalGrants for students were submitted. Over 60 family meetings took place to provide students and parents financial information so that the family could make well-informed decisions for the student and family.
- 96.49% of ECHS seniors were accepted into a 4-year institution. 23 ECHS students committed to a UC campus. 43 ECHS students committed to a CSU campus. 13 ECHS students committed to a private institution. 35 ECHS students committed to a California community college.

The counseling team reiterated their commitment to their social justice, student-centered, and socio-emotional approach to providing student's services.

The counseling team commends ECS board member Zena Fong for her work helping at-risk students get to college. As well, the counseling team shared their appreciation for the work of the ECS leadership and board of directors in helping ECHS achieve these results from their students. The Bruce Greenspon Bridging the Gap Scholarship and Manhattan Beach Rotary Scholarship made it possible for 4 ECHS students to go to college.

The different ways in which ECHS helps students get admitted and enrolled into college were shared:

- Senior Seminar workshops
- Zena Fong + LMU interns focus on at-risk students
- Community Partnerships
- El Camino College partnership

- Alumni Coordinator Rachael Adsila

Zena Fong commented that the ECHS counseling team actively works with graduating ECHS students to sign up for college programs such as first-year experience programs which makes a large impact by giving the students the supports they need to succeed in college year 1 and beyond.

Information on what's ahead for college acceptance and enrollment services were shared:

- New 9th/10th grade counselor
- More office space
- Exploring alumni mentorship programs
- Summer SAT program for incoming seniors
- NorCal college trip
- Continue to offer internal scholarships to seniors

On a final note, the counseling team shared that if the internal scholarship amounts could be increased, it would make a large impact toward getting more students to UC campuses. For each student, it costs 3-4k for the first two years to be able to attend these campuses.

D. Financial Update

EdTec Consultant Dorothy Lee presented the financial update slides:

The financial update slides were shown.

The 17-18 financials were shown. The ECMS-Gardena difference was explained. This was due mostly to a timing issue with Prop K funding, more SPED costs than in the prior school year, and the SPED legal settlement.

The 18-19 financials were shown.

E. Development Update

Development Manager Julie Vo shared the development update slides:

18-19 fundraising goals were shown.

Julie Vo commented on how beneficial it has been to have COO Farnaz Flechner as a thought partner in fundraising, including carefully considering the ROI on money spent for fundraising.

The development status report was shared.

The 18-19 grant calendar was shown and the board members were highly encouraged to share any leads on potential donors.

IV. Study Sessions

A. Focus on ECS Strategic Goals

Director of Strategic Initiatives Kami Cotler presented the study session slides:

Highlights at each ECS school were shared:

- ECHS - renewed WASC accreditation, AP passage rates increased
- ECMS-Gardena - improved CAASPP scores across the board
- ECMS-Inglewood - continued steady growth in CAASPP scores, closing in on statewide average scores

These successes are indicators of making progress toward the equitable outcomes aspired to in the quote "We know we are succeeding in closing the gap when the backgrounds of students (race and class) cease to be predictors of achievement." - Dr. Pedro Noguera.

ECS COO Farnaz Flechner shared about the importance of having a singular focus across ECS. With a singular focus, anytime that a decision or action takes place that is at odds with the singular focus, all ECS stakeholders have the ability to speak up and ask if the decision or action is in line with ECS' singular focus: strengthening student outcomes.

The study session began with the following guiding questions as each group reviewed the benchmark chart's 4 strategic goals, their subgoals, and measures of success:

- Are these the right goals?
- Are these the right metrics?
- Should they all be reach goals? Should anything start green? OR are there some metrics that are so important that we should always keep an eye on them?
- What is missing?

Each group shared their takeaways from their study session:

Group 1:

Focused on reviewing Goal 1. Subgoal 1b was confirmed as a crucial subgoal. Not sure if subgoals that extend out to year 2022 should be on this benchmark chart. Subgoal 1a could be moved from Goal 1 to Goal 3 since it is not specifically a student outcome goal. For goal 2, the group debated whether it should be limited to pursuing student equity and enrollment or if it should be opened up to equity in staffing as well.

Group 2: For goal 2, the group echoed considering adding equity in staffing to the equity goal. The group also questioned if the tool is intended to be reviewed at every board meeting. If so, the group suggests developing additional subgoals and measures of success that are measured more frequently than annually. Finally, the group asked if the subgoal of creating a sustainable Green Ambassadors program should be put on the back burner at this point.

Group 3: The group struggled with the difference between static and dynamic measurements. For Goal 1, why not expand it to all schools rather than just ECMS-Gardena, adding in students and parents as well? The group discussed that teacher retention may not be the best measure related to student outcomes since there are many factors that influence teacher retention. Additionally, college readiness should be a measurable goal. The group also questioned whether the Green Ambassadors goal was connected directly to the revised ECS mission statement. Finally, the group suggested that it would be beneficial if the compliance-related subgoals and measures of success were moved off to a separate compliance checklist so that they do not occupy space on this strategic benchmark chart.

Group 4: The group discussed that the school climate and culture morale issue was not specific to ECMS-Gardena, so it should be reconsidered and potentially added to all ECS schools. The teacher retention measure of success only showed ECS teachers that were asked back, but not which teachers wanted to be back. Equity goal needs to be more defined, putting hard numbers and percentages into the measures of success. Specifically, these numbers should mirror the demographics of the local communities. Finally, the Expand ECS' Reach goal appeared to be missing a subgoal related to outreach and community engagement. The group commented that there should be more ways to bring up the overall level of excitement and engagement as local community outreach efforts take place.

B. Potential Sites for ECHS #2

CEO Alison Diaz presented the study session slides:

Research on potential sites has taken place with the assistance of Pacific Charter School Development, Red Hook Capital Partners, and Bushore Church Real Estate, as well as ECS' own extensive efforts.

Finding the right site is always a very challenging part of opening a new school. What this means is that things look different than expected when you first obtain a site versus after improvements are made over time.

Facilities and Sustainability Manager Alayna Santos shared that the site search criteria list was devised from various sources, including the CDE and other agencies. The following criteria were agreed to be important in the search for any new school site:

- Location
- Safety
- Environment
- ECS Culture
- Share and Size
- Cost
- Availability
- Public Acceptance

Research data was shown on competing high schools in the area, where current ECS students live, and where potential sites in the desired area were.

Board member Denise Berger asked if the triangle area is currently skewed slightly to the west because of ECHS, with the thought being that where ECHS students live is less significant than where ECMS students live because ECHS students are already matriculated. Alison Diaz commented that there have been a number of other sites outside of the triangle area that have been visited but there have been few viable options found.

Denise Berger asked what the difference is between a short-term and a long-term site. Alison Diaz responded that because new ECS sites typically open up one grade level at a time, a short-term, smaller site is beneficial because its ADA funding can support its facility expense as the school grows to full enrollment over multiple years.

The Crossroads site was discussed through the lens of the ECS site search criteria category by category. For location and safety, the site scored favorably. For environment, the issues raised were the aesthetic from inside the building looking outside, due to small windows and minimal natural light views. From the street to the building, the site was aesthetically pleasing. Also a potential problem, the site may have some potential odor issues--a musty smell emanating from some parts of the building. Next, ECS culture was considered. There are potential issues with outdoor space limitations, as well as small classroom sizes. However, for a short-term site, these issues are not considered to be significant. Finally, shape and size, and cost were considered and though there are some potential issues, if they can be worked out with the building owners they will be manageable for a short-term site.

Planned ECHS #2 Principal Dave Trejo presented a SWOT analysis of the major strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats for the Crossroads site. Some strengths were dual enrollment possibilities with El Camino College as well as turnkey technology on-site and the existence of a Conditional Use Permit. Weaknesses were the asking cost of the building owners, the subterranean level and narrow hallways in the building, and that the original plan to open in 20/21 would have to be expedited to 19/20.

Denise Berger asked if she could get a sense of what typical costs are to lease facilities for a charter school of this size. Some discussion ensued and it was agreed that due to being over time for the meeting, further discussion would take place at next month's board meeting. No immediate board action would need to take place because the next step regarding the Crossroads site is to send in a letter of intent to lease and this is non-binding.
