II. Development

A. Unfinished Business from Previous Meeting

There was no unfinished business from previous meeting.

B. New Business

• Summary of Key Points

- Dr. Khalil Graham reviewed roles and responsibilities with every member of the committee.
- We are looking for fundraising and community engagement conversations.
- Every year we need to decide as a group what the fundraising priority is.
- Community initiatives, local, state, and national initiatives are what we look at.
- Come July, we want to be very clear on our expectations of what the committee will do.
- Largest donors include: Charter School Growth Fund, New School Venture Fund, Williams Edwards Price, Pilgrims Pride. Potentially Darla Moore in the future.
- If we will be a seven-figure fundraising school, that cannot be Dr. Graham and Trevor alone.
- LSC has not found many people to be a grant writer part-time for us. Attempting to have someone do it on a volunteer basis is very difficult to find.
- We are not pursuing a full-time fundraising person due to financial constraints. It needs to be a team of fundraisers vs just being one person.
- The current budget is holding LSC back from hiring a CDO due to LSC being so new and young. The upfront investment is large.
- There are 5 buckets of work: teaching and learning, school operations, school finance, advocacy and development, and HR/talent/compliance. Two people are owning all of those buckets.
- $1M deficit to open up the school next year the way we want to.
- Board meetings feel like its reporting news and are not more interactive. The bridge between committee meetings and the board meeting is vast currently.
- Closing out Q4, the board is speaking to the board more vs Dr. Graham speaking to the board.
- Ken Lee prefers to have an agenda and action items during board meetings as to not be distracted or lose momentum.
- As the campus is growing, it will not pay for itself until it reaches the 450 child mark. Usually, that is around Year 3.
- Advocacy pieces, local revenue opportunities, national revenue opportunities, and grants are ways for LSC to get money and fundraise.

- Previous committee member, Steve Creech, reached out to the city manager and did not get much traction there as far as a grant writer is concerned.
- USC Columbia has a grant writing professor and he is looking for someone who is a graduate and eager to learn and start out for LSC.
- Revenue from the Quixote Club is not generating revenue for itself yet. It needs to figure out how to sustain itself before LSC asks for money.
- Darla Moore Foundation Update: Her Foundation president spoke to Dr. Graham and he will share the LSC plan with the President. Feedback received is that the Foundation is very interested in donating $6M over the next few years. They also want a 36-38 month turnaround to open up an LSC in Lake City. It would be K-2 and grade 6. Roughly 600 children to start in one building.
- 10-week program at USC Columbia for grant writing. Roughly $1200 program.
