II. Virtual Learning Update

A. Virtual Learning Update

Sonya Pratt, Chief of School, shared an overview of the Quarter 2 Academic Data in comparison to Quarter 1 Data. Pratt shared trends in the data, including students who have less than eight classes absences performing better academically, as well as eleventh grade trending with the lowest grades of the quarter, as they had the most written and oral exams.

She also shared action steps that City on a Hill is taking after reviewing Quarter 2 data, including planning 2021 Summer School as well as having conversations with students who are not on track to matriculate to the next grade. Pratt concluded the update by sharing the City on a Hill's Leadership Team is in the early stages of planning for students to return to Circuit Street in a hybrid model.

The Board asked if, to Pratt's knowledge, our Charter peers are working through similar challenges. Pratt shared that across the charter landscape, attendance is also down, and several schools are working through same challenges of remote learning. Pratt shared that the Charter partner group she meets with monthly has shared that School Year 2020-2021 has been the most challenging academic year for their school sites as well.

The Board discussed engagement of students in a remote model, and Pratt shared that the Leadership Team has had conversations with parents of students who were behind before Quarter 3 began. Pratt also shared that the School Academic Committee is discussing a cumulative system of ranking Quarterly grades at the close of Quarter 4.

The discussion concluded with the Board asking how a hybrid model would affect learning time. Pratt shared that in a hybrid model, teachers would have to manage A-week students, B-week students, and students who opt-in to a full time remote model. She concluded the discussion by sharing that it is because of that management and the loss of learning time that the Leadership Team is considering several different models. Cara Stillings-Candal arrived at 5:15 PM.
