Sonya Pratt, Executive Director, provided an update on the organization's goals, reporting that current student enrollment stands at 73, with daily attendance at 87%. She noted that chronic absenteeism is at 41%, primarily due to a flu outbreak affecting many students. To help address this, the school introduced a buy-back program during the winter, allowing students to make up missed work.

Pratt also observed a typical dip in performance during Quarter 2, as students generally perform best in Quarter 1 and Quarter 4. She highlighted that, at the end of January, the school hosted both a parent/guardian night and a morning session. The leadership team made a concerted effort to engage families who had not yet attended, aiming to boost attendance and involvement.

Looking ahead to February, Pratt shared excitement about the upcoming Black Trivia Night, inviting both friends and families to participate. She also mentioned that college counselors are holding one-on-one sessions to assist families with the college application process.
