III. Enrollment and Finance

A. Enrollment and Finance presentation

President Lapidus introduced this section of the presentation and conversation. He started by explaining changes in student demographics within the state and the region and its impact on enrollment and financial health. He noted that in prior years enrollment and financial information had been presented in yearly snapshots. This year he asked that the finance team present the information in a longitudinal fashion so that historical changes could be more easily seen and that anticipated future activity better represented. He indicated that J. Bry had presented this information to union leadership to gain some insight and input from their perspective before presenting to the broader campus community. The president indicated that the administration has always been transparent of these topics with the campus, but wanted to further present the information so that there would be no surprises as the conversation about enrollment and finances continues.

J. Bry next presented a PowerPoint that focused on enrollment and finances (presentation attached). He noted the competitive nature of student enrollment in the northeast and highlighted the nationwide decline of college age students. The university has seen a decline in student prospects from feeder schools (high schools and community college) in recent years. Admissions criteria, trends in enrollment and projections were discussed.

He next discussed the university's online programs and the positive impact graduate and accelerated programs. The relationship between the decline in undergraduate enrollment and the increase in graduate enrollment was highlighted. He concluded the presentation with a discussion of funding sources, investment account balances, state funding, and the implication of decreased residence hall occupancy.

There was a discussion.

The president thanked J. Bry for the detailed presentation. The Chair recognized the challenges ahead and thanked J. Bry for the presentation. She stated that continued focus and discussion on these issues would take place with the Finance Sub-committee and the Fitchburg State administrative team.

B. Finance Dashboard

J. Bry presented a slightly modified financial dashboard. D. Irving commented that the dashboard has evolved into a useful document.

There was a discussion on faculty ratio, financial aid, Pell grants and the traditional student melt that occurs during the spring semester.

IV. University Fee Policy Proposal

A. University Fee Policy Proposal - VOTE (15-20/21)

The president presented a University Fee Policy Proposal. He suggested that given the financial conversation that just took place, and the challenging position that students and their families might find themselves in given the pandemic, that the university consider holding the University Fee flat for the coming academic year. He noted that the University

Fee is the largest fee of all fees assessed. He continued that there are other fees yet to be addressed, but hoped that any proposed fee increases for the coming year be modest.

S. Olson stated that he supported this policy and anything we can do to lessen the burden to students is appreciated.

There was a discussion.

D. Irving made a motion to approve the President's recommendation to adopt a one-time policy to not raise the University Fee for FY22.

S. Olson seconded the motion.

The board VOTED to approve the motion.

VII. Chair's report

A. Update from the Chair

D. Phillips stated that J. Bry's report was rather sobering and she proposed that the board increase the frequency meetings to provide more assistance to the university. She recommended adding two additional full Board meetings next year, and encouraged greater activity within sub-committees. She further stated that the meetings would be enhanced through the utilization of sub-committees reporting. She informed the board that the Executive Committee was scheduled to meet and would focus on the review of the by-laws, and trustee self-assessment instrument. She reported that one trustee has not completed the self-assessment and encouraged the completion of the form.

She discussed scheduling a board retreat in summer and potentially making a retreat an annual occurrence. If the pandemic prohibits an in-person board retreat, she still thought that a virtual meeting of the board would be valuable. She commented on the Trustee Conference which she found valuable and enjoyable. There were several take-aways that will be shared in the future. She wanted everyone to keep in mind the Commissioner's Equity Agenda initiative and how its focus will benefit students.

VIII. President's Report

A. Commencements (May & December 2020)

President reported on the virtual commencements held in December for the May, August and December 2020 graduates. He thanked those that participated. ### B. Opening of the Spring Semester

The President reported on the opening of the spring semester. He stated, that the university did meet its enrollment target relative to the spring budget. He did note that the target set was reduced and conservative and he emphasized that enrollment overall was down approximately 400 students. He also indicated that residence halls occupancy was down, partially by design due to COVID and partially due to reduced enrollment. Work continues on strategies designed to attract students to repopulate the campus when possible to do so.

The President reported that out of state students arrived last Friday to be tested and quarantined. On Sunday, other students arrived to be tested. He indicated that the first two days of classes were held remotely to allow time for test results to come back. The percentage of positive cases were low and the university outperformed state averages. The university will continue to monitor the campus community and believes that it has strong health and safety protocols in place. This semester, testing will be conducted five days a week. All residential students and commuters on campus three or more times per week must test at least once per week. Additionally, higher risk populations (athletes and nurses) will test more frequently. All others will be tested randomly, but anyone can be tested anytime. Testing is open to all faculty, staff, and students. There are consequences for those students that refuse to test by way of fees and other sanctions. The President said our students, faculty and staff have been good about wearing masks and adhering to other safety requirements.

He next reported that the state is no longer requiring a mandatory flu shot. He explained the different teaching modalities. He stated that the university is trying to give students interaction opportunities when safe to do so.

C. Fall Admissions Update

The President reported that the university made significant investments in the enrollment process and that he is cautiously optimistic about fall enrollment. He indicated that application numbers are up and the work now is to convert applicants to yield. More students have been accepted this year than last and to date, there is a small positive increase in the number of deposits. There are many opportunities for virtual engagement with potential students. He noted the increase in alumni involvement in making calls and willing to make presentations to prospective students. He will keep the Board informed on the fall enrollment numbers as they continue to formalize.
