B. Meeting the Needs of ALL Learners

Amanda and Michelle introduced themselves and their roles here at Exploris as instructional support for all students and teachers. They presented data around test scores, special needs, demographics to provide us with a snapshot (from 5th grade). Exploris demographics show that we are more heavily weighted toward the higher two quintiles in proficiency. Further, all groups for which there was sufficient data show growth.

Amanda next presented information about a typical day in core instructional support, in this 5th grade sample. Then, Michelle presented information about how students who need intervention are identified, and how that intervention is then delivered. The instructional support team concluded their presentation with clear assertions that the needs of all students were begin met through differentiated instruction and integrated supports.

Tom challenged the staff to codify ways to show other ways that students are successful aside from standardized test scores. Amanda and Michelle reminded the board that that is currently what the EEC is working toward. Kim noted that test scores are also important; the group agreed. We just crave a more holistic picture. Tom urged us to be a model for other schools who want to measure success internally and differently.
