 - Line between Board and Management (CEO)

- see slide graphic
- Define Board feedback on Operations
 - Examples:
 - CEO makes a report and asks for Board input during committee meetings.
 - CEO reaches out to a board member in a supportive or coaching role for help with a dilemma.
 - Non-example:
 - CEO reports at Board meeting and a Board member makes suggestion for program implementation.

Partnership in action framework (see slide)

Case studies were reviewed in small groups and discussed as a group.

1. High % of turn-over in staff.
 1. First look for understanding of current problem, and then make a plan for future prevention. 6-10% turn-over is normal/expected.
2. Board demands a specific staffing decision by CEO.
 1. CEO should inform Board that this is beyond their role. Board can troubleshoot possible retribution. CEO should be proactive in working with the Board. Board should be concerned with anything that puts the school at risk.
3. Parent letter to Board regarding curriculum.
 1. Board would direct parent to CEO according to policy. Board notifies CEO of issue to help her prepare for parent communication. Draft a standard email and/or script for Board members to use. Create internal procedure for when the Board should become involved.

Next steps:

- CEO Support and Eval committee should be giving support throughout the year (through scheduled check-ins) and not just annually.
 - Give CEO constructive feedback.
 - Check in on progress and give structure to feedback.
- Draft email and script for parent interactions. Board members should hold each other accountable to using the email and script.
- Dave will check in with Nancy and Amie next week.

Nancy will draft the email and script for parent interactions.

Nancy will add Governance Training for the Board to the Retreat agenda.
