Management Solutions for Information Sharing and Identifying Time Spent

When do we need to create?

When problems are presented

Do we always need to change?

If it isn't broken, let the process happen

BEST Practice for identifying and understanding problems:

Staff & Family Feedback

Annual Process, Position, & Program Audits

Active Listening

Information Sharing Opportunities

Flow of Information

B.O.D REVIEW
All items are reviewed through the B.O.D

FOR BOARD

EXEC. LEADERSHIP
Department items taken for final execution

Step 4

DEPARTMENT
Department wide information sharing platform

Step 3

REGIONAL
Small teams can take ides to larger groups

Step 2

SMALL TEAMS
Individual and small team problem solving

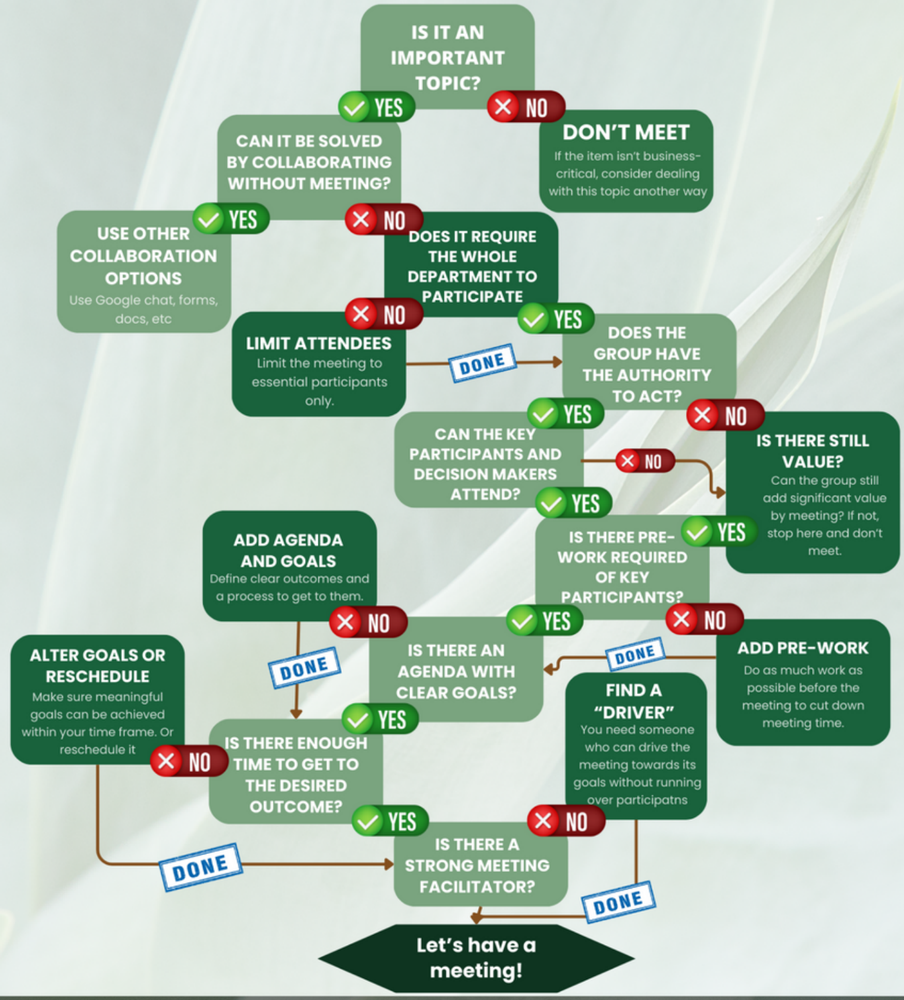
Step 1

- All Staff
- Admin Summit
- Professional Development

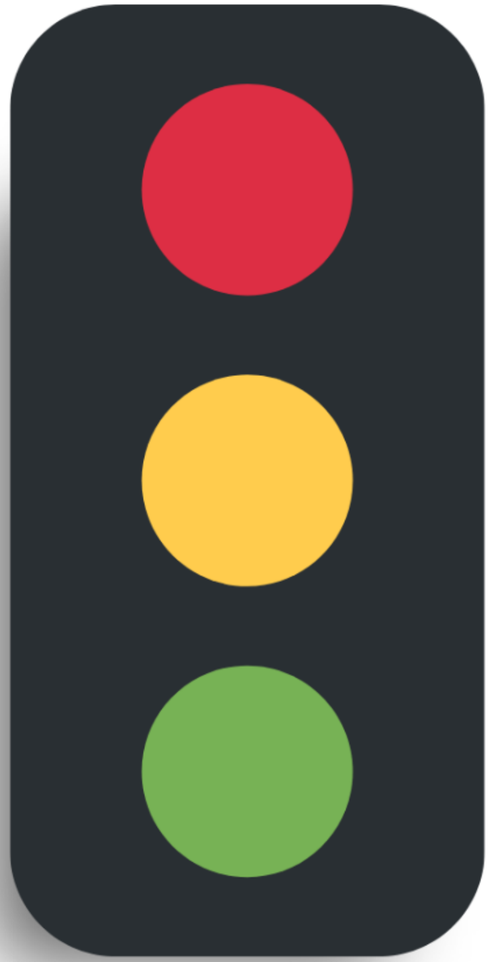
Should We Have a Meeting?

So many staff members spend their workday bouncing from meeting to meeting. In many organizations, the de facto method of getting anything done has become “let’s meet about it.” Can we do anything about meeting overload?

Maybe. Use this handy decision tree to determine whether you should have a meeting or not.



Stop, Slow, or Go



Red (Stop):

- Brainstorming
- Collaborating
- General information sharing
- Presenting ideas
- Status updates
- Problem solving

Yellow (Slow):

- Turning notes into action items
- Discussing logistics to problem solving
- Creating project plans/deadlines
- Distributing work
- Design & innovation
- Decision making
- Strategic planning

Green (Go):

- Execution
- Training
- Development
- Time to do the work!
