Presented Board members a handout with a series of questions and/or comments/concerns from parents in response to the school's recent lockdown and other items of general interest or concern; questions centered on when the school will practice a real time lockdown; concerns about teachers' and staff's training for active shooters and other lockdown scenarios; will ECR offer counseling to students traumatized as a result of the lockdown and will that become part of the school's emergency plan; why were parents allowed to be within 50-1000 feet of the school (put in harm's way); time ran out so Ms. Dorries referred the Board to the list of questions from the handout;

* Ms. Heather Cruz (Parent): Wanted to ask the board questions, to which Mr. Wright informed Ms. Cruz that the Board does not respond to specific questions and comments during the Public Comments section; Mr. Wright informed Ms. Cruz that the Board encourages guests to show up prior to the meeting for a conversation, and/or to send email to get in contact with Board members/administration who will be glad to respond to questions; stated she has been talking to the school for three years about active shooter training and has not heard anything; wants to know what active shooter training has been done or will be done at the school;

* Ms. Karen Evens (Teacher): Speaking as a member of the Calendar Committee, Ms. Evens provided an update and background information on the proposed 23-24 and 24-25 school calendars; committee met multiple times; some felt the need to push back start date; 23-24 was picked as the off-year to push back; discussed various dates, PD dates, considered number of days per Semester; holidays, final exam dates, graduation dates;

* Ms. Sue Schuster (Teacher): Parent, former student, and teacher for over nineteen years;

speaking today to shed light on many issues teachers are dealing, including: high stress with no help in sight; congratulated the school for hiring counselors, including college counselors, wellness center therapists, and paraprofessionals, and even additional administration in the last five years; noted that the aforementioned positions have helped to support students, but cited no such support for teachers; in Math department, she noted, teachers are asked to prepare students for the Smarter Balanced Assessment Consortium (SBAC) Summative/End of Year Test by reviewing material the students have not had while putting their regular curricula on hold, even while being expected to teach the whole curricula by the end of the year; argued that the money spent on the aforementioned people/programs could have been spent on funding more teachers; noted that without teachers, there is no school; asserted that many teachers are burning out this year; cited personal example of how hard she works and concerns about taking a day off or attending a conference for professional growth; asserted that ECR does not attract qualified substitutes which compounds teachers' stress; compared our substitute teachers' pay compared with other schools' sub. pay rates (GHCHS); asserted that the substitutes that we get rarely know the subject matter, which causes greater stress, forcing her to choose between valuing her health over coming to school to teach her students when ill;

* Ms. Kyna Collins (Teacher and UTLA Chapter Chair): Commended teachers for how they responded to the lockdown; noted that teachers are the ones in the classrooms who look students in the eye when students are afraid and promise the students that the teachers will protect the students; affirmed that teachers had been trained on how to respond; proud to report that the new teachers reported that they felt prepared to respond; they were trained and knew what to do; commended all staff and especially the teachers; acknowledged that the lockdown event deserves further conversation which will be brought to the school's safety committee for further consideration; also noted that UTLA went through the school's proposed school calendar proposals and affirmed UTLA's support for the calendar committee's recommendation and expressed hope that the proposed calendars will be passed (approved); commented on the WASC report and the need for increased, two-way communication, which is something, she said, has been broached for years; she added that there is new legislation put in place this year to increase student participation on school boards; noted that we as a school should be listening to our students, in addition to adding the third teacher representative to our board; she noted that almost 70% of school boards have students on them; lastly, note that she looks forward to opening negotiations on performance evaluations in the upcoming months.

III. Investment

A. January, 2023, Investment Update

Mike Breller, Investment Advisor, Beacon Pointe, presented the 4th Quarter Investment Report, and Gregory Wood, CBO, presented the January, 2023, Investment Update, with highlights as follow:

M. Breller's Comments/highlights:

- * Challenging 2022 for all investment markets; inflation challenge required FED to act quickly to challenge inflation (8% to 9%); as Fed tackled inflation, fed funds rate increased about 425 basis points in the last fifteen months or so resulting in a challenging market for fixed income securities which is usually the most stable part of the portfolio in the OPEB and Gen. Investment Accounts; smaller returns yet less volatile; noted the 425 basis points proved challenging to bond prices; bonds still paying the coupon payment rate of return; noted that the environment was also challenging for equities; the cost to borrow hits the bottom line (profits); in this environment, earnings challenged and so stocks also went down;
- * Slide Page 1: S&P 500 down 18.1% in this challenging environment; Bloomberg US aggregate bond index down 13%; worst bond market in any of our investing lives here; real estate assets also down 25%; obviously the cost to borrow mortgages impacts real estate valuations;

While bad news for 2022, the OPEB account had been invested for much longer than 2022; ECRCHS enjoyed excess returns above what we benched this portfolio to earn it; we mixed the portfolio again so you can earn say 6% over the long term; down 17% is well bell that, but recall in 2019 and 2020 and 2021 all earned you double digit returns to the positive; so looking back in a 3,4, or 5 year cycle, you still earned roughly 6% that you've tried to earn with some growth and capital preservation; you have more capital preservation with more bonds in the Gen. Account; you have a shorter timeframe for a potential use of assets; near-term than payouts of benefits from the OPEB account; so the Gen. Fund fared better than did the OPEB;

Slide Page 2 - Illustrates the total portfolio for the OPEB; down 17% while the policy is down 16%, demonstrating alignment with market conditions;

Slide Page 6 - Gen. Account at $5.9M which is -13.6% and the benchmark was -14.4%; our fiduciary responsibility is to the Board policy and ask if the investments are aligned accordingly;

Also Page 2 - at the bottom shows the asset class amount/percentage, the asset class as defined in the policy; the policy range, etc.; he noted that all investments are within the policy range;

Mr. Wood's comments/highlights:

* We have a strong relationship with Mr. Breller and Beacon Pointe; we have regular conversations; in response to the report, Mr. Wood noted that funds had been moved from underperforming asset manager (Polen Capital) and into funds that were performing better (index fund for diversity);

OPEB:

* Ended December at $21.8M; it went up $1.6M; now at $23.4M at end of January; on a cumulative basis, our investments are up nearly 7% YTD; $1.54M in contributions of $220K each month; OPEB total change since the beginning of the year is 14.4%. We've recovered from some of the downturn losses;

Mr. Solkovits asked Mr. Wood and Mr. Breller since the Fed. seems to be ignoring its second directive which is to maintain full employment and given that there might not be any increase on the debt ceiling, it could have a catastrophic impact on the economy and investments, is there any position you foresee taking to avoid significant harm to the investment portfolios, to which Mr. Breller responded that there is no chance that the Fed Govt. won't increase the debt ceiling, because of the effects of not doing so in this environment; he noted that the Fed will prioritize inflation fighting over some increase in unemployment; noted that we are at extremely low levels of unemployment; that unemployment is under 4%, or what Mr. Breller referred to as the Non-accelerated inflation rate of unemployment (NAIRU), which could lead to "wage push" inflation; so it's harder to tackle inflation due to households having more income/purchasing ability/discretionary income; so the Feb tackles inflation first with moderate increases in the fed. funds rate; this scenario can still produce a GDP production number with some unemployment;

Mr. Solkovits then asked how it's going to affect our portfolio, to which Mr. Breller responded that he believes that we may experience a light recession; he noted that many had predicted over a year ago that the economy would not have a soft landing; he noted that we don't see a deep recession; with a base case of a soft landing he doesn't see that the markets have to come off much more than what was anticipated; he noted that markets moved last year knowing that the Fed was attacking inflation with rate increases; a deeper recession, if it occurs, would likely result in takedowns; bonds are in better shape today than last year; doesn't expect much volatility in equities in a light/mild recession;

Mr. Solkovits followed up with words to the effect of "So there are no contingency plans," to which Mr. Breller replied, "We don't have to necessarily plan for contingencies." He noted that the most important thing is that "we balance your portfolio."

Mr. Wood added that the Corporate Trustee of these funds, US Bank, will be present (virtually at the next F&I Committee meeting and Regular Board Meeting to explain their role and so all parties can talk and know our respective roles, etc.

IV. Finance

A. January, 2023, Financial Update

Mr. Wood and Ms. Ilyas presented the January, 2023, Financial Update, with highlights as follow:

- * Balance Sheet shows assets and liabilities;
- * Increase in Cash when compared to cash position at this time last year as a result of receiving more funding; decrease on long-term liabilities (OPEB);
- * Cash on hand for 235 days (if we were not to receive any funding); essentially, this could allows us to operate for an entire school were the State not provide any funding;
- * Profit and Loss - how much revenue we've received YTD; what expenses we've paid out and how much since budget adoption and 1st interim projections; Mr. Wood noted that the 2nd Interim will be included with actuals through January and be discussed/presented in March;
- * Mid point in the year and comparing where we are from last year; increase in fed. revenue due to cafeteria's universal meals provision and COVID CARES Act money coming in; we've also received a huge increase in State revenue due to two new block grants (arts and music and learning recovery); we've also seen a fair market value downward adjustment;
- * On the expense side, we've been making a lot of capital improvements so that reflects the increase on the capital outlay line; benefits increases in STRS and PERS rates;
- * 1st Interim vs. Actuals: comparing where we are at month 7; we're on par; Mr. Wood noted that we're 7/12 or 58% percent at this time of year, noting that we're on schedule.
- * Reviewed textbooks and IMA department budgets;
- * We're working on 2nd Qtr report; launching budget development process for next year;

Mr. Hussey noted that the Calendar committee met several times; the proposals were sent to parents; this is only a discussion item and not a vote; the major thing is that we'd start a week later, so we'd probably be on LAUSD's calendar during 2023-2024; he highlighted some of the changes to each calendar, acknowledging the work of the calendar committee and the need to realign the calendars; Mr. Solkovits noted that he heard Ms. Collins, UTLA, say that UTLA supports the proposed school calendars, so he also supports it.
