Public Comments

Here are the public comments:

1. Amy Carter, a teacher at El Camino since its charter conversion in 2011, expressed concern over recent teacher layoffs and the first-ever teacher strike during her tenure. She noted that a proposed 3.5% bonus for non-union staff is on the agenda—originally negotiated by teachers to offset lost pay from the strike. Carter opposed extending this bonus to administrative and support staff while teacher layoffs are occurring, urging the board to vote no on the proposal.
2. Unnamed Speaker, delivered a passionate and critical statement regarding the school board's recent decisions, particularly highlighting dissatisfaction with teacher layoffs, administrative raises, and proposed bonuses for non-union staff. They criticized the board for mismanaging the budget, prioritizing aesthetic upgrades over educational needs, and lacking leadership during the teacher strike. The speaker condemned the perceived disregard for teachers' contributions and the impact on students, calling the board's actions out of touch and disrespectful to the school community.
3. Daniel Sutherland, a science teacher at El Camino and one of those impacted by the current teacher layoffs, urged the board to support a severance package proposed by the teachers' union. He emphasized that many laid-off teachers have young families and depend on continued health insurance, especially during vulnerable periods. He noted the 3.5% bonus received does not adequately cover health costs and asked the board to demonstrate care and accountability by advising administration and legal counsel to accept the union's severance proposal.
4. Aaron Sanders, a teacher and parent at El Camino Real Charter High School, expressed deep concern over declining enrollment, negative public perception, and a lack of transparency from school leadership. She criticized the new parent board representative, Ms. Ayvazian Iwal, for not responding to multiple emails sent in March and highlighted that only Board Member Mr. Hussey had acknowledged her outreach. Sanders shared that due to these issues, her second child would attend Calabasas High School instead of El Camino. She emphasized that recent discussions of laying off up to 44 teachers have further damaged trust among families, deterring new enrollments. Urging the board to ask tougher questions and engage more directly with the school community, Sanders called for action to retain quality educators and restore confidence in the institution's future.
