- The test adjusts in difficulty based on student performance, providing individualized assessment data.
- El Camino has administered MAP testing for five to six years, with consistent performance trends.

Reading Performance

- The Growth and Achievement Overview Report compares student performance from one semester to another.
- 20% of students scored in the 80th percentile or higher nationally — meaning they outperformed 80% of students across the U.S.
- 26% of students scored between the 60th–80th percentile nationally.
- Overall, more than 50% of ECR students performed above the national average in reading.
- Slight year-to-year variations were observed (2–3 point differences), but overall performance remains strong and stable.

Math Performance

- 15% of students scored in the 80th percentile or higher nationally.
- Math scores are slightly lower than reading, reflecting a national trend of declining math performance post-pandemic.
- Despite this, most students remain at or above the 50th percentile, performing comparably to national peers.

Instructional Applications

- MAP data helps identify:
 - High-performing students who may benefit from accelerated or enrichment instruction.

- Teachers and administrators use MAP data to guide instruction and set growth goals per subject area and grade level.

- Dr. Clark noted that cursive instruction had been removed but is now reintroduced in the curriculum due to renewed importance in literacy and life skills.
